

Once upon a time there was a horse named Jessica and she got separated from the herd.

This horse was bay with black eyes. She loves to swim but it was too hard with such big waves.

She was getting tired. Then the waves got so tall she started to go under but she went up again. Then the waves started to die down and she reached land.

There was no water or food any where. She lived and she found the rest of the herd. After that she lived happy ever after.

